- Q. Okay. If you have a payment that's going into a particular trust and that payment is going in once and runs through the waterfall?
 - A. Uh-huh.

Q. The distribution occurs one way. Will it occur in a different way and will investors get a different amount of money if that single payment is divided into two installment payments that hit the waterfall in different points in time?

MR. HOUPT: Same objection.

A. Certain deals, the funds available may be defined as the available distribution amount, and that includes interest and principal. So that's what we would refer to as one cash bucket. Other deals may divide the funds collected into interest and principal, referred to as interest funds and principal funds, with separate waterfalls, separate -- you know, cash may be divided or bifurcated in that fashion.

So it just depends on the deal documents.

Q. So is it your testimony that it doesn't make a difference whether the money goes in once or whether the money goes in -- in one slug or two different slugs?

MR. HOUPT: Objection to the term "slug" and same objection as before about legal conclusions. It's unclear what documents you're asking about, and this goes beyond the scope of the relevant testimony.

- A. It's a very vague question, and I could answer hypothetically, but it's -- it's very vague.
 - Q. Can you answer hypothetically?
- A. Hypothetically, if you change -- if you your cash flow goes -- no, no, I can't.

MR. HOUPT: Okay. I'm going to object to this line of questioning first on the ground that you seem to be asking Mr. Anthony for legal conclusions about an amorphous set of documents that isn't defined and that you're not showing him, and this also -- I mean, I'll let the witness answer for now, but this goes well beyond I think the relevant topics on which he can testify. He's not here as an expert on PSA interpretation. He's a fact witness.

MS. BRASWELL: You're taking the position that he's a fact witness today?

MR. HOUPT: I haven't designated him as an expert witness.

MS. BRASWELL: Okay.

THE WITNESS: I would respond to that question that it's a nonsensical question and doesn't make much sense to me.
